WILLIAM H. CLUTZ TAKEN BY DEATH

Brother of Dr. Clutz. Resident of Near Latimore Dies soon after Severe Fall. Another Man Dies after Fall from Wagon.

WILLIAM H. CLUTZ
William H. Clutz, a former resident of Cumberland township, and a brother of Dr. Jacob A. Clutz, of Seminary Ridge, died in a sanitarium near Baltimore on Thursday afternoon aged 74 years and 22 days.

Mr. Clutz was born in Cumberland township, near Mt. Joy Church, a son of Henry and Hannah (Buffington) Clutz. He followed the occupation of farming all of his life and at the age of thirty moved to Maryland where he lived on a farm near Taneytown. More recently he took a smaller farm along Sandy Lane, near Taneytown.

He leaves his wife who before marriage, was Miss Elizabeth Gettler, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gettler who lived near Two Taverns. He also leaves five children, Harry Clutz, of near Baltimore; George Clutz and Mrs. Joseph Adams, of York; Mrs. Scott Smith and Mrs. Harry Hitebick, of near Taneytown. Dr. Clutz is the only member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clutz now living.

Funeral on Monday morning meeting at his late home at ten o'clock. Services in the Lutheran church at Taneytown and interment in the church cemetery.

JOHN COFFEY

John Coffey a resident of Coffeytown, several miles from Latimore died about 1 o'clock Thursday morning. Mr. Coffey was on his way to services at the Mt. Victory church, near his home, Wednesday night, when he fell and broke his leg near the ankle. Dr. Crawford was called, set the broken bones, and returned to his home.

Shortly after the doctor left the house the patient died from shock, having been a sufferer from heart trouble for some time. Mr. Coffey was sixty-eight years of age and is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Burd, of Harrisburg, and one son, Charles Coffey, of Latimore township. The funeral was held to-day with interment at Mt. Victory.

ELMER LAUCHMAN

While taking a load of lumber to Boiling Springs on Thursday Elmer Lauchman was thrown from his wagon in the vicinity of Boiling Springs and sustained injuries which caused his death a few hours later. Upon descending a hill near Boiling Springs Mr. Lauchman drew the brake on his wagon and the rear wheels slid around, throwing Mr. Lauchman out into the road. He sustained many serious injuries, his ear being partly torn off, a jaw broken, a finger mashed and many bruises in the face. He was taken to Boiling Springs by a doctor and two young men of that place, where he died within a few hours.

MRS. EMANUEL HOFFMAN

Mrs. Emanuel Hoffman, wife of a prominent farmer of near East Berlin, died suddenly shortly after midnight on Wednesday morning. Death was due to heart trouble. Mrs. Hoffman retired Tuesday evening in apparently good health. At a late hour the same night she was stricken with an attack at the heart, death resulting before the arrival of Dr. Eugene Elgin, of East Berlin. Mrs. Hoffman was in her fifty first year of age. Eleven children survive, also two brothers, J. Henry Miller and W. T. Miller, and two sisters, Mrs. Isaac N. Fickes and Mrs. C. H. Beitzel, of York.

DIRECTORS ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

Rev. William K. Fleck again Heads Association of County School Directors. Delegates to State Convention. Magician.

At this morning's session of the annual convention of the School Directors' Association of Adams County the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Rev. W. K. Fleck, Fairfield; vice presidents, Robert K. Major, Straban township, and E. L. Eckert, Oxford township; secretary, Samuel R. Bair, Conewago township; treasurer, Irvin L. Taylor, Gettysburg; auditor, Emory H. Plank, Cumberland township.

Delegates to attend next year's State convention were chosen as follows, Henry Hantz, Reading township; Rev. W. K. Fleck, Fairfield; John W. Smith, Tyrone township; Orpheus Diller, York Springs; H. S. Reigle, McSherrystown. The alternates chosen are Bernard P. Topper, McSherrystown; Willis N. Hartman, Menallen township; W. C. VanSoyoc, Latimore township; J. I. Hereter, Highland township; Charles Hafer, Abbottstown.

In his address on "School Directors and Public Sentiment", Prof. R. M. McNeal, of the Department at Harrisburg, urged directors to perform their duties to the best interests of the schools even if their course of action went contrary to the feeling of the community. Prof. L. H. Dennis, State Expert Assistant in Agriculture, had as his subject "The Farmer of To-Morrow" and told of the improvement in conditions and methods now taking hold of their profession.

This afternoon both the speakers of the morning again addressed the convention which came to a close in time to allow the directors to take the trains for their homes.

Commissioner Claxton's talk on Thursday afternoon was an earnest plea for the betterment of the rural schools and he devoted a large portion of his address to urging centralization, using one large building with graded schools in each district instead of the numerous little one room school houses where the teacher is compelled to handle children from six to sixteen.

Prof. Pentz's afternoon subject was "Co-operation". The delegates and officers made their reports during this portion of the convention.

In the evening Taber, the magician, made a great hit with an audience which included many beside the directors. Many of his tricks were new and he was more successful in his cabinet work than any man who has yet appeared in Gettysburg. It was a pleasant diversion and the directors welcomed it keenly.

GOOD PRICES AT THE SPRING SALES

Early Sales Show the Trend of Prices and Farmers Believe the Results this Year will be up to those of Former Seasons.

That the prices realized at the spring sales will be fully up to those of other years, and possibly better, is the opinion of those who are in close touch with conditions and have watched the sales already held. Auctioneers and clerks are practically unanimous in declaring that stock will bring fully as high figures as in any recent year.

Cows, it is said for example, are selling higher than last year. One auctioneer, who has been in the business for a long period, said that he got higher prices at one farm this year than at any time since he has been "crying" sales. If the good stock is offered the price is almost sure to be received. The sale, above referred to, was in one of the quarantined townships, so that the recent appearance here of the aphthous fever seems to have done nothing toward affecting the figures bid. Permits are secured in these townships.

Horses have not been selling up to last year's figures but this is due, it is said, to the fact that but few good horses have been sold. "If the higher grade horses are offered, they will, it is believed, sell fully up to the standard of other years."

Hogs are selling at prices that are very satisfactory to those disposing of their stock and, all in all, the farmers have little of which to complain. This, in view of recent conditions, is gratifying to all concerned.

C. P. Myers, of Mt. Pleasant township, had sale on Thursday which amounted to $998. The best horse sold for $139 and the best cow for $58. The attendance was about 200. G. R. Thompson called the sale.

Mrs. Laura Klunk's sale in Butler township on Thursday amounted to $632.72. The best horse sold for $77.50 and the best cow for $60. Attendance 300. Ira P. Taylor called the sale.

LOOK FOR BOGUS MONEY ORDERS

Gettysburg Post Office Notified of their being Issued. Five Cent Postage to Germany now instead of Two Cents.

Postmaster Duncan has been warned by Postmaster-General Burleson to be on the lookout for counterfeit money orders which are reported to be in circulation. Operations of the alleged money order counterfeiters have thus far been confined particularly to the West, Chicago being the city farthest East in which efforts to circulate the "queer" orders have partially succeeded.

Along with other post offices of the country, the Gettysburg office has received a communication from the head of the postal department calling for the protection against cashing of the counterfeiters. The fake money orders are said to be of skillful workmanship and defy detection, except that they are printed on a cheap grade of paper.

Postmaster Charles S. Duncan has received a bulletin from the Department at Washington which states that letters for Germany must be prepaid at the Postal Union rate. The order is issued from the office of Joseph Stewart, second assistant postmaster general, and reads:

"The arrangement for the two-cent letter rate between the United States and Germany applies only to such letters as are dispatched from either country to the other by sea direct, letters which require transit through an intervening country or countries being subject to Postal Union rates and conditions. As there is now no direct service to Germany, notice is hereby given that, pending the resumption of such direct service, letters mailed in this country destined for Germany shall be subject to the Postal Union rate of five cents for the first ounce or fraction thereof and three cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof. Letters not fully prepaid at the rate indicated will not be allowed to go forward to destination, but will be dispatched from the United States exchange offices under stamp "T" subject to a charge on delivery equal to double the amount of the deficient postage."

MUMPS STOP MEETING

Will not Run Risk of Sending Disease to Rural Schools.

On account of the general prevalence of mumps in Gettysburg, County Superintendent Roth has decided to postpone to some future date, not yet announced, the county teachers' rally which was scheduled for Saturday in the local High School building. Prof. Roth felt that holding the meeting at this time might possibly result in carrying the infection to other schools and deemed the postponement a wise precautionary measure.

WARNED AGAINST HARMING SHIPS

Germany and Britain Told of Blockade Danger.

INSIST ON SAFETY TO VESSELS

Washington Declares We Have Right to Sail High Seas Unless Blockade Is Declared.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The United States has warned Great Britain and Germany respectively that general use of the American flag by British vessels would be viewed with grave concern here, and that the destruction by Germany of any American vessel in the newly prescribed war zone would lead to serious complications.

It became known that the text of the two notes sent to these two powers expressed much more emphatically than had been generally known, the displeasure of the United States at the use of neutral flags by British merchantmen, and its solicitude over the implication that neutral vessels were liable to destruction by German submarines in the waters around Great Britain and Ireland.

In the document which has been transmitted to Ambassador Gerard, at Berlin, for presentation to the German foreign office, there is a friendly but pointed statement that American vessels should have free and unrestricted passage through the high seas and unblockaded waters, and that destruction of an American vessel might lead to a change in the hitherto friendly relations which have existed between the United States and Germany.

While in the note to Great Britain the representations made are not based on the Lusitania incident, but on the statement of the British foreign office justifying the use of neutral flags by its vessels, the United States has stated unequivocally, it is understood, that a continuance of the practice would be highly dangerous to neutral vessels and would be viewed with deep anxiety in Washington.

Among diplomats the fact that the United States has taken a pronounced stand has created a profound impression.

No joint representations with the United States on the same subjects have been made by any of the neutrals, though the various foreign offices, through their ministers in Washington have consulted the American government as to its attitude.

There is no question, according to those who are familiar with the American position, that the issuance of any orders from the British admiralty, as Germany alleges, authorizing the use of the American flag, would be disapproved. The British foreign office statement was taken by officials as tantamount to a suggestion to British vessels that they could hoist a neutral flag. It is such an official and general countenance to the practice to which the United States takes exception.

BRITISH REPLY IS ON WAY

Answer Made to U. S. Protest Against Delay of American Cargoes.

London, Feb. 12.—The final reply of the British government to the note of the United States bearing on the detention by British authority of American cargoes destined to neutral European ports, was started by the British foreign office on its way to Washington.

The British reply referred to is said to be far more complete than the preliminary statement sent at the time of the acknowledgment of the note. It includes the results of investigations into delayed American cargoes and American trade with European neutrals since the beginning of the war.

ALLIES WON'T TALK PEACE

Grey Tells Commons German Attitude
Precludes Such a Course.

London, Feb. 12.—The recent public utterances in Germany give no reason to suppose that the purpose in view will be promoted by adopting the course suggested, was the answer of Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, to a question in the house of commons, asking whether, with a view to ending the terrible loss of life in the war, Great Britain was prepared to declare publicly the basis whereon the allies were willing to discuss terms of peace. The members of the house greeted Sir Edward Grey's answer with cheers.

GOTTLIEB VON JAGOW.

Warns Neutral Vessels to Avoid English Waters.

Gottlieb von Jagow, the German foreign secretary, who is paying a short visit to Berlin during the absence of Emperor William on the eastern front, received a correspondent and explained to him the nature of the recently announced German naval measures to be taken against hostile commercial shipping, over which, he said, there seemed to be some misapprehension abroad owing to the delay in the transmission of the memorandum accompanying the proclamation. The phrase, "submarine blockade," as used in the press discussion of the proclamation, he said, was responsible for this misapprehension. He warned neutral vessels to avoid the waters of England.

GERMANS GAIN IN ARGONNE FIGHT

But French Declare Invaders Were Repulsed.

Berlin, Feb. 12.—At the war office the following statement was issued: "In the western theater of war an attack in the Argonne resulted in a gain of ground for us. Six officers, 207 men, two machine guns and six small cannon were captured. In the central and Southern Vosges we gained a few small local successes."

French Admit Serious Losses.

Paris, Jan. 12.—The following official communication was issued by the war office:

"In the Argonne, in the region of Bagatelle, after a violent struggle with lance and bombs, which continued throughout the morning, a German attack was delivered at 1 o'clock in the afternoon against the earthworks of Marle Therese. It was carried out in line by columns of four along 500 meters (550 yards) of the front, but was broken down by our artillery and infantry fire. The enemy left on the ground a very great number of dead. Our losses were serious."

"The enemy has strongly bombarded Neuport and the banks of the Yser, but has not succeeded in doing any material damage. Our artillery has responded effectively."

"In the Vosges, to the south of the Chateau de Lusse, north of the Col de Sainte Marie, we succeeded, by a sudden attack, in occupying one of the German trenches. On several parts of the front there has been a very spirited artillery engagement."

It was said also that the company is working on orders for the United States government.

GERMANS LEAVE LODZ TO RUSSIANS

Kaiser's Army Flees Before Muscovite Drive.

CZAR NEAR INSTERBURG

Population of East Prussian City Advised to Flee—Battle Still Rages in Carpathians.

London, Feb. 12.—The evacuation of Lodz by the Germans has been confirmed, according to a Petrograd dispatch, which states that stores, offices, commissariat and transports are being hurriedly removed to Kalisz.

A refugee who escaped to Czenstochowa, the dispatch says, declared that the Germans have resumed with redoubled vigor the construction of heavily fortified lines which was suspended six weeks ago.

Lodz, the second city of Poland, was captured by the Germans on Dec. 6, when Field Marshal von Hindenburg began his dash for Warsaw, seventy-five miles to the northeast.

The Russians were reported to have assumed the offensive on the Warsaw front in an effort to push back the Germans, who are said to have transferred many troops from that region in East Prussia.

The London News' Cologne correspondent telegraphs that he has learned that the population of Insterburg, East Prussia, has been advised by the military authorities to leave the town.

"The Russians are retreating from Bukovina, strongly pressed by superior Austro-German forces," says the Daily Chronicle's Czernowitz correspondent.

"They are stubbornly contesting every yard and falling back in good order. It may be expected that they will attempt to make a stand here at Czernowitz and hold the capital."

The Daily Mail's Petrograd correspondent reports that the Russian forces have reached a point twenty miles south of the Dniester Pass, in the Carpathians. The correspondent adds that each Austrian column that attacked independently in the recent heavy fighting was shattered and that powerful German reinforcements that were aiding the Austrians now are apparently being withdrawn and removed to the East Prussian front.

Battle in Carpathians Still Raging.

Geneva, Feb. 12.—The battle which began in the Carpathians on Feb. 7, still is raging furiously along a front of sixty miles, from Mount Polonica Run to Mount Mako, according to the latest information received here.

In the Mezolaborec region, General Dankl is said to have been obliged to send reinforcements to extricate a Hungarian corps (40,000 men), which was almost cut off.

The Russians are reported to have gained several miles in the valley of Lyttie, which borders the northern slopes of Polonica Run and also advanced half a mile in the valley of Laborec.

Says German Campaign Is Smashed.

Petrograd, Feb. 12.—Russia has smashed the German offensive in the east. Military experts here say the turning point of the war has been reached and the czar's forces have finally established their superiority.

The steady forward movement of the Russians in East Prussia, their great advance over the difficult territory north of the lower Vistula, their advance along the lower Vistula on the left bank, the defeat of the Germans' desperate attacks around Borjow, and finally the defeat of the German divisions in the Carpathians, all occurring simultaneously, are an indication unmistakable to the soldier's eye.

While popular interest centers in the Carpathian campaign, the military experts are closely watching the situation in East Prussia, where the Germans and Russians are now locked in battle over a front of fifty miles, stretching southward from the Memel river.

According to the expert of the Bourse Gazette more than 1,200,000 men are engaged in this conflict, which may be called the "battle of three rivers." It is being fought on the banks of the Memel, Inster and Scheuppe rivers. The heaviest fighting is now in the district about Lashelnen.

This town is now held by the Russians, but the German front is in the form of a half circle west of Lashelnen. On the plain between the Memel and the Scheuppe the Germans have dug nine rows of trenches that can be taken by assault only with heavy losses.

Train Kills Woman at Crossing.

Westville, N. J., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Annie E. Stites, sixty years old, was killed by an electric train at a grade crossing of the West Jersey & Seashore railroad in South Westville. Mrs. Stites was on her way to market. Witnesses of the accident say that when she started across the railroad tracks the warning bell was ringing. They also say the motorman of the express blew the whistle as he neared the crossing.

FIFTY TURK SHIPS SUNK BY RUSSIANS

Black Sea Fleet Shells Trebizond and Does Heavy Damage.

Petrograd, Feb. 12.—More than fifty Turkish sailing ships have been sunk by the Russian fleet in the Black Sea in recent operations, it was officially announced.

The entire shore of Asia Minor and between Platana and Rize, a distance of more than sixty miles, has been shelled.

Details of the fleet's operation were given in the following statement: "On Feb. 8 our torpedo boat destroyers in the Black Sea bombarded three Turkish batteries at Trebizond and wrecked them. Other heavy damage was done there. Our warships later destroyed two bridge in the region of Platana, and a third to the west of Rize."

"In the course of its operations the Russian fleet sank more than fifty of the enemy's strong ships."

MOTHER KILLED BY TRAIN

3-Year-Old Daughter Fatally Hurt by Pennsylvania Freight.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Sallie Yelk, wife of Daniel K. Yelk, a prosperous farmer of Gibraltair, near here, was instantly killed and her three-year-old daughter, Nora, was probably fatally injured, when a southbound Pennsylvania railroad freight train struck them at a crossing near their home.

The child was taken to the Homeopathic hospital, in Reading, where the physicians say her chances for recovery are slight.

Mother and daughter were returning to their home after an inspection of a bungalow, which was erected by the father along the banks of the Allegheny creek, some distance away.

They apparently did not hear the approach of the freight, for they stepped directly in its path. The child was seriously hurt about the head and suffered internal injuries. Besides her husband, Mrs. Yelk leaves four children.

Mother-Teachers Restored.

New York, Feb. 12.—The board of education revoked the suspension of Mrs. Lora H. Wagner, the teacher in the Tottenville high school, whose application for a leave of absence prior to the birth of her child was refused. The revocation resolution provided that the charge be withdrawn and that Mrs. Wagner be restored to duty at once. Similar action was taken in sixteen other teacher-mother cases.

Killed by Buzzsaw.

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 12.—A terrible fate befell Alden Koch, twenty-one years old, an automobile dealer of this city. He decided to take a day off to visit his father, John Koch, a rich farmer, several miles from town. The father was preparing to operate his saw mill, and while tuning up Alden was caught by the flywheel and hurled into the buzzsaw.

HOUSE ROBBED

Colored Tramp Blamed with Stealing at Schriver Home.

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Schriver and children from their home about two miles north of Gettysburg Wednesday afternoon a man, supposed to have been a negro tramp seen in this section, entered the house by means of a porch roof and second story window and got away with an overcoat, pair of shoes, revolver, watch chain and about $4, the contents of a child's bank. The entire house was thoroughly ransacked. The thief was traced by Constables Wilson and Shealer to the vicinity of Emmitsburg but they were not successful in apprehending him.

The discovery of the theft was not made until the family was about to retire late Wednesday night.

CHINATOWN SOON WILL BE MEMORY

Opium and Gambling Dens Closed by Police.

CELESTIALS ARE MIGRATING

In the Old Days in New York City
Tong Members Controlled Gambling Interests and Paid Into Coffers of Ruling Politicians From $1,500 to $2,000 a Week.

Tom Lee, Chinatown's grand old man, admits it himself. New York's Chinese colony will soon be a thing of memory alone. He ought to know, for this old-time tong man and gambler, who has watched oriental life wax and wane on Bowery street for the last forty years.

His yellow skin is wrinkled over the high cheekbones now, and the skinny hand which strokes his white Li Hung Chang beard trembles a little from age. His manner holds the grave con-tesy of an old high born gentleman, and his voice is mournful as he speaks of what Chinatown was and is.

"Things velly dull," he pronounced.
"No business. No white people come to visit. Chinamen all leaving. Lau-ndrymen used to come Saturday night.
See friends, smoke pipe, gamble little, maybe. Now Chinamen go to New Jersey for fun. Stores all closing.
Never saw things so dull. Soon be no Chinatown at all."

He sighed, and the old eyes that had looked on Chinatown in all the evil of her prosperous days blinked sorrow-fully.

And Chinatown was not.

Police Have Been Active.

Let this be written into the record of the police under Inspector Wakefield of the Second Inspection district.
The old Chinatown, delirious with gambling fever, steeped in opium smoke, about which the lowest sediment of the city's vice settled, is dead, and the police with the axes which demolish the "icebox" doors of the gambling rooms are building its coffin.

In the old days police interference was futile. Under a graft administration it was also impolitic. The tong members controlled the gambling interests in Chinatown, and these paid into the coffers of ruling politicians from $1,500 to $2,000 a week.

In former days Chinatown was left pretty much to its own devices as far as government was concerned. The way of the Chinese was unknown to the policeman. "No matter what happened in the narrow streets, with their swinging black and gold signs and their bland, innocent, wholly cunning population, there were no eyewitnesses.
The crackle of revolver shots and the shrieked tong wavery, "Ah! ollah!" would bring the patrolman on the run. The dead man would be there and no one else. If the tong member was shot in a house the inhabitants would disappear, and the police would search an empty dwelling for witnesses.

Chinatown Changed.

Conditions have changed now, and with their changing the squalor that was Chinatown has passed away.

Three things were the foundation of life to the Chinese colony—gambling, opium smoking and the tong government. Under Wakefield all these have gone, and, following them, the Chinese are leaving by scores and hundreds, seeking clues where the policeman is not omnipresent.

Gambling has always been the primal passion of the Chinese. Thousands of dollars changed hands nightly across the green fantan table behind the massive wooden doors. Practically every house had its fortified room, with trap doors leading to cellars connected by carefully concealed passageways with long tunnels through which the raided gamblers might flee, to reappear, the picture of unconcerned innocence, a half block away.

The police have killed gambling.
There have not been the methods of the "strong arm squad." It has been systematic destruction, coupled with a cleverness in varying their method of surveillance that has wrought the change which is wiping out Chinatown.
The "icebox" doors are no more. They are being burned for kindling in Chinese stoves after having been split to pieces by the axes of the police.

More than 100 fantan tables have been burned in the last eighteen months. With detectives everywhere, with a Chinese plain clothes man and two Japanese stool pigeons working for Wakefield in Chinatown, the chances for the oriental gambler are slim. Rather than remain under these conditions he has emigrated to the more favorable climes of Newark and Paterson.

For a little while the gambling spirit lingered. The oriental plunger got a semblance of action through betting on the number of pips an orange or apple contained. The price of fruit soared in Chinatown and then dropped when the police placed the ban on this amusement. The fantan rooms are empty now, and the erstwhile players seek the society of some fortunate friend who owns a stove and sufficient money to pay for the fuel. There they sit all evening and play dominoes after the fashion of the war strategists of the rural general store.

Odd Happenings In the War News.

Among the Australian soldiers in Egypt is a regiment of mounted sharpshooters, who are expected to do deadly work in the deserts.

A list just compiled shows that sixty-six ships are interned in American ports, fifty-five flying the German and seven the Austrian flag.

Letters from German lines say when men leave the trenches they are made to remove their boots and socks, and their feet are rubbed and dusted with some kind of powder.

British capitalists have refused to put their money into airline dye plants through fear that after the war the Germans would be able to undersell them and wreck the business.

The value and skill of air men was again demonstrated when French fliers dropped bombs on the famous Hom-berg castle in Alsace, where German staff officers were quartered, set fire to it and destroyed it.

British artillerymen, deciding to celebrate the Kaiser's birthday recently, shelled a house at Messines used by the Germans as a magazine for bombs and grenades and blew it up. The explosions, a soldier wrote, furnished a fireworks display worthy of the anniversary.

DOGS CARRY MESSAGES FOR FRENCH SOLDIERS.

Trained to Hide When They See Uniform of Enemy.

Dogs are doing an immense service with the French army as estafettes, or messengers. And it all came about by pure chance.

When war broke out there was not a single dog messenger in the entire army, though the Paris police had used them to advantage. But after the Germans invaded France thousands of dogs found themselves homeless. Many were picked up as company mascots.

In their spare time the men amused themselves by teaching the dogs to carry knapsacks, canteens and finally messages from one trench to another.
The dogs not only had an absolute disregard for gun and rifle fire, but offered an insignificant target. Then commanders awoke to their value.

Hundreds were "educated" by a special army branch of the Institute of Zoological Psychology under P. Hachet-Supplet.

The work now being done by these dogs is little short of marvelous. They have been taught to hide behind trees upon the approach of human beings.
They know the difference between a French and a German uniform. They glide noiselessly through underbrush and in carrying messages always choose woods, ditches and dry creek beds in preference to open roads, where they might be spotted by sharpshooters. Their hearing is remarkably sharp, and it is seldom that they fail into the hands of the enemy. Most of them are females.

LASSOER A FIRE HERO.

Carnegie's Neighbor Saw Act and Will Ask For Medal.

H. M. Hilley, neighbor in Scotland of Andrew Carnegie and a witness at the rescue of a madman from a four inch ledge 100 feet above ground, announced that he would write to Carnegie recommending a hero medal for J. W.
Hall, a fireman, who lassoed the man.
"Hall's daring was marvellous," said Hilley, "and his action in twice lasso-ing the man's feet from the top rung of an eighty-five foot ladder struck me as one of the coolest pieces of work imaginable."

W. A. Tracy, the man who danced outside of the seventh floor of the Brown Palace hotel in Denver while firemen tried to rescue him from the ledge, was declared insane.

A LADY AND A BABY

And Uncle Sam's Polite Consul
In a City In France.

HOW THEY MET AND PARTED.

And How Light Was Thrown on the Problem That the Woman, Who Was French and Voluble, and the Infant, Who Was American, Presented.

Not very long after having taken charge of one of the consulates in France I was one morning seated at my desk busily engaged in figuring over my quarterly accounts, when suddenly a woman carrying a bundle in her arms appeared before me. I had not resided in France sufficiently long to imbibe the unadulterated French politeeness, but I had progressed sufficiently to ask:

"Madame, what can I have the pleasure of doing for you this morning?"

"Monsieur," she exclaimed, walking toward me, holding out the bundle as if to deposit it on my desk, "this is an American baby. What shall I do with it?"

Alarmed at the prospect of so suddenly becoming a father with the orange blossoms and rice omitted and knowing that the American government had established no precedent of maintaining orphan asylums either at home or abroad, I hesitated a moment and replied:

"Will the madame please be seated over there by the door and tell me why, being a Frenchwoman, she has become possessed of an American baby?"

It never occurred to me to examine the little bundle of humanity. I had in previous times rather prided myself on my ability to distinguish the nationality of people, had even boasted I could tell them by their shoes, but I had never tried my perceptive powers on infant physiognomies.

"Voilà," she said, seating herself.

I shall never forget that word voilà.
It was one of the first French words I ever learned. You know it means—oh, so many things when used exclamatorily, as it generally is. Usually, however, to the beginner in the French language it conveys the meaning of "Here it is." That was about as far as I had progressed in my French education at that time in regard to the many varied meanings of voilà, and I determined that if it meant the baby then it would retain its geographical location indefinitely—that is, in the woman's lap over by the door, or preferably outside. But her voilà referred not so much to the infant as to the story of how it came to be in her possession.

She talked volubly while I tried to assume the defensive power of silence.
But to a Frenchwoman—well, silence simply means what the jockey gives the horse in the last heat—concealment.

From the verbal French cyclone she hurled at me I gathered a few fragments that enabled me to understand.
For three months she had been employed as nurse by an American woman who had paid her good wages. Four weeks previously, however, the mother had returned to New York, saying she was going over for only two or three days on an urgent business matter and would return at once. She had not seen or heard of her since. Being a woman who had to work for her own living, the baby was a burden on her hands.
She could hardly support herself, much less provide for the infant, and as the child was of American parentage she thought the representative of the American government ought to take care of it.

I suggested that I would write to the city authorities in New York asking as to the genuineness of the address that the woman said the mother had left with her.

"And what shall I do during all the time you are waiting for an answer—starve?"

My answer finally was a twenty franc gold piece, with which she departed, saying she would try to take care of the baby until I could hear from the New York authorities.

Now, the reasonable and the unreasonable part of the story is that since her departure, though the sun has returned hundreds of times, she has never returned. It had not risen more than seven times, however, before I learned the reason.

It was just one week later at an informal dinner of the sixteen consuls who resided in the city that in the course of a conversation with my Italian colleague I told him the story of the woman and the baby. What do you suppose he answered?

"Well, well," he laughed, "why, that same woman came to my office, only she had an Italian baby. And I thought I was fortunate to get rid of her for 50 francs."

In the general conversation that followed I discovered that the woman had visited every one of the sixteen consulates in the city, and by her ability to change the baby's nationality from English to German and from Russian to Japanese and all the other signs of the rainbow she had extracted from the consular corps of that particular French city the sum of 775
francs.

This incident is just one of a series of similar experiences with frauds and fakers a consul has to face in the performance of his duties.—Thornwell Haynes in New York Tribune.

Who hangs himself in the chimney should not complain of smoke.—German Proverb.

"A Hungry Eye Sleeps Not."
The old adage, "A hungry eye sleeps not," is a very truthful one, and many a sufferer from insomnia would be cured of the complaint if he drank a cup of hot milk, with a little nutmeg

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Unobtrusive Retainer That Keeps Rubbers on the Feet.

The humiliating experience of losing an overshoe in the middle of the street will never happen to the person who equips himself with the overshoe retainer that has just appeared. Unless some such precaution is taken the incident is likely to happen to any one for the reason that a pair of rubbers bought for one pair of shoes will not adjust themselves to another pair which happens to be a shade larger or smaller or of a little different shape.
The retainer consists of a loop of wire which fits around the heel, and it is supplied with straps passing one in front of the foot and the other back and over the heel. With this in place the overshoe cannot become separated from its rightful owner at the critical moment of crossing a muddy road or street.

Household Hints.
When washing raw lace let the final rinsing be in skim milk if you would give it a soft, creamy tone.

When preserved citron gets dry and hard it can be softened by pouring hot water over it and letting it stand.

To make a faded dress white boil it in two gallons of water in which a half cupful of cream of tartar is dissolved.

Use milk instead of water for making pie crust which is to be served cold. It will keep crisp longer.

When iodine is spilled on sheets or clothing simply soak the article twenty-four hours in cold water.

Cooling the Oven.
If the oven is too hot when baking cake it may be cooled by leaving the door slightly ajar or by placing a dish of cold water on the grate in the oven.
If the cake bakes too fast on top cover the upper grate above the cake with a piece of heavy paper. If the paper is laid directly on the cake itself and the cake splits open the paper will probably cling to the batter. If this should happen the paper should not be removed until after the cake has cooled, when it may be gently torn off.

Whole Wheat Bread.
One tablespoonful of lard, one tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of salt, one cupful each of boiling water and hot (not boiling) milk, a yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful of warm water, one cupful of white flour, three cupfuls of whole wheat flour or enough to make a soft dough. Mix, knead for ten minutes, cover and let rise in an even temperature to twice its first bulk. Make into small loaves, place in greased pans, let rise an hour or until puffy and bake.

Tomato Maltre.
Fry a sliced onion brown in the bottom of the soup kettle and pour in the contents of a can of tomatoes and two cupfuls of boiling water; simmer until the tomatoes can be pressed through a colander, press them through and return to the fire; add a cupful of well boiled rice, a tablespoonful of flour rubbed smooth with a tablespoonful of butter; boil up and serve.

Eggs in Bread Cases.
Cut two inch slices of bread and scrap out a hollow in each slice. Put the bread cases in the oven until they are brown and crisp. Moisten each with a little melted butter and cream and break an egg in each. Sprinkle with pepper and salt and put in the oven until the eggs are set.

Polishing the Stove.
Stove blacking mixed with turpentine and applied in the usual manner is blacker and more glossy and more durable than when mixed with any other liquid. Turpentine prevents rust and when put on an old, rusty stove will make it look as well as new.

Sardines and Bacon.
Drain sardines and rub off the skins.
Wrap each in a thin slice of bacon and fasten with a tiny wooden skewer or a toothpick. Drop into hot, deep fat and fry until bacon is crisp. Drain and remove skewers and serve very hot.

To Clean Pewter.
Remove the spots on the pewter with a swab of whiting lightly dipped in oil.
Wash in a weak suds, rinse well with boiling water, dry and polish with hot suds and a stiff brush. Use a clean damp cloth for the furniture.

gotten on top and sweetened, if desired. Hot malted milk is also excellent, and hot milk toast has brought restful slumber to many a convalescent.

PUT SULPHUR ON AN ITCHING SKIN AND END ECZEMA

Says this old-time Eczema remedy is applied like cold cream.

Any irritation or breaking out on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.
He states that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subside the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.
Those troubled should obtain at any drug store an ounce of bold-sulphur, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream.

LADIES! Darken

Your Gray Hair
Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and No body will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy", you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

A Woman's Eye For a Defensive Position

By SADIE OLCOTT.

My husband being away from home a great deal and our house being in the country, he proposed that I keep a pistol within reach. I told him that I would be more afraid of the pistol than an enemy, but he said that quite likely if I were cornered I would surprise myself. He had been a soldier in the Spanish-American war and had learned by experience that under the excitement of battle one forgets danger. He bought me a revolver, first showed me how it worked with empty chambers, then filled them. We had an old fashioned batrack in the hall, with a little box on it for a hat brush. Tom said the box would be a good place to keep the revolver. There was a lid to it with hinges, and the weapon would be concealed there. If any one came to the house with evil intent he would come to the door and I could take up the revolver before opening it. All of which was very fine, but I was sure that I would never have the nerve to shoot any one.

The thing remained in the box for three years. I never passed it without a shudder. One day a tramp came along and asked for food. I didn't like his looks and would have told him to move on, but I was afraid of him. I gave him something to eat, and while eating he was taking in the situation. When he had finished the meal, which it was plain he didn't want, he arose from the table and, instead of leaving, deliberately walked upstairs.

I was frightened out of my wits. I was willing that he should take everything in the house if he would only let me alone. I heard him rummaging upstairs and knew that he was helping himself to my valuables. It did not take long for my mind to be turned from fear to indignation at the man's appropriating my belongings. There were some articles of value among them, but what excited my anger was the thought that he would take my engagement ring, which I had left on the bureau in my bedroom. Tom had given it to me when he was poor, and it had cost very little money, but I prized it far beyond anything I had.

Listening to the man rummaging, I became more and more indignant till at last I got mad, not angry, but mad. That's the only word to express my feelings.

Then I thought a bit. The man would come down the staircase after taking what he wanted. It occurred to me that with a revolver in my hand I would have a great advantage over him. I lifted the lid of the box, but drew back. The pistol looked so deadly. Then I put my hand on it and took it out, holding it from me.

At that moment I heard the man in the hall above, and I concluded that if I were going to save my property I had better be up and doing. The thought of his going away with my engagement ring put nerve into me, and I fixed my attention on enough of it for my purpose—on the revolver, but, still holding it away from me, cocked it.

The living room door was hung in such a way that when it was open I could stand in the angle it made with the wall and through the space left between door and wall see up the staircase and be largely protected. I ran into the living room, took up a position behind my improvised fortress and put the muzzle of the revolver through the opening. When the man appeared at the head of the stairs I thought I was going to faint, but the sight of a lot of my things he had in his hands and his bulging pockets made me forget fright in a desire to save them.

"You just drop those things!" I called in an angry voice.

The man stopped and looked about him for the person who had spoken. I rattled the revolver against the door. He saw it, and a change came over him.

"Drop them!" I shouted.

He dropped what he had in his hands on the steps.

"Now empty your pockets."

He did as I directed.

"Turn them inside out."

He obeyed.

"Now walk out the front door."

He obeyed with alacrity.

By this time I was brave as a lion and was seized with a desire to punish him. After he had passed out through the door I followed him and pointed the revolver at him. In my excitement I unintentionally pulled the trigger. He started to run.

At the moment a man in a buggy drove by and, hearing the shot and seeing the man run, took after him, but the pursued turned, pulled a pistol and fired at his pursuer, who, being unarmed, gave up the chase.

Tom came home before my protector left. He told Tom that I had fired at the man and missed him. I was a marvel of courage, and he was sure that if I had not been hampered by skirts I would have followed the tramp and shot him.

This was all very fine, but as soon as the fracas was over I dropped into a chair in the hall in a tremor, at the same time throwing the revolver as far from me as I was able.

When I told Tom the story as I have told it here he said I should have been a man and a soldier—my eye for military position was remarkable. He never would have thought of the crack between the door and the wall as an admirable defensive position.
Too Literal a Pupil.
My younger brother took it upon himself to teach a small boy how to count. After repeating the numbers from one to ten he decided to test his pupil. "Now, what's this?" he asked, holding up one finger. "A dirty finger," was the answer.—Exchange.
